

Marc Bistricher

Squash Player

Marc Bistricher was a jack of all trades who played the game from a young age, watching his parents do so. He is who he is because of his play style, which is lively and unpredictable. It is also apparent in how he approaches life as a whole: taking chances when it comes to expressing himself artistically, competing on behalf of people who cannot do so themselves (as seen with charity), and even teaching people about art and creativity through public speaking events. Since 2008, Marc Bistricher has been on the Tour and he is one of the top 100 players in the world. In 2014, he made the quarter-finals of both the National Squash Academy Open and Costa Rica Open de Squash, which are just two examples of his success. His second place finish at the MAA Invitational illustrated that he had a great year throughout his career as well. Marc Bistricher has achieved two career victories in 2019 and 2020, before securing his first PSA title in 2018. He has so far advanced to four semi-finals in 2019 and 2020, and one PSA title in 2018.
